AN IDEA THAT WORKED WONDERS

“A small body of determined spirits fired by an unquenchable faith in their mission can alter the course of history.”

-M K Gandhi

However small the team might be, if they aim right and keep steadfast in their path of determination, nothing could stop them from reaching their objectives. ACM GIDF believes in being steady, even if that leads to an apparent slowness. We believe in understanding every step well before taking them. Perhaps that's the reason why majority of our projects have scored well in terms of scalability. The journey from being just an idea to a multi-pronged vehicle of social activism has been incredible. We express our sincere thanks to all stakeholders and well wishers who made this possible.

The quarter just gone by has given us an opportunity to reassemble strategies. Most of our programs have now reached a stage go forward. While we are happy about this, we do responsibilities associated with this success. We are far too many dependants on our projects. It's generation of activists to take over – we are sure GIDF, will bring forth many new ideas to change millions. We are sure we will get to see the Great faster than we anticipated it to happen.

our strengths and revise our from where we can only understand the tremendous now can't look back. There time now for the second these people, trained by the lot of India's impoverished Indian Dream coming true even

In all the areas we operate – Education, Environment and Gender Equality – more and more respondents in. Even in tough and areas like HIV/AIDS response to our hold special

Employment, Health, this quarter saw coming inaccessible we found positive

While our well established Education programs are now planning to expand their scope, our employment wing has started bringing home results with a significant number of trainees getting jobs in reputed firms. ACM GIDF is particularly proud of its work with minorities coming to our Delhi GRC centre. Their increased awareness of their rights gives us immense satisfaction and encouragement to spread out even more, and meet tougher challenges.

MAKING OF A HEALTHY NATION

He who has health has hope; and he who has hope has everything.

-Arabic Proverb

It's often been said that the mind has great influence over the body, and maladies often have their origin there. A healthy approach to life, with adequate awareness of hygiene, sanitation and preventive measures can kick-start the growth of a nation like nothing else can. ACM GIDF has formatted its health initiatives in a manner that their benefits reach those at the bottom of the pyramid. We believe a healthy population at the base level will propagate the making of a healthy nation like nothing else can.

In the third quarter of the current financial year, our programs concentrating on HIV/AIDS went all the way to improve awareness levels among its beneficiaries. For the MSM, a high risk group, we took special initiatives. Around 210 members of the community were advised on Pre Test and Post test counseling based on the status of Clients reports and field response. We also held a crisis meeting in Delhi after a series of unfortunate acts of violence against members of MSM community – one of them was gang raped while another, forced to devour acid, died. Local DSACS has promised action and assured us about his intention to form a State Level Crisis Committee.

Our work with another high risk group, the highway truckers at Guna in MP, saw fresh impetus with screening of film shows. These films, on HIV/AIDS, have been eminently liked by the truckers who have demanded for more such shows in other parts of the nation.

Yet another encouraging factor this quarter was the involvement of a large number of respondents in our World Aids Day celebrations at Guna. The program was designed to educate young villagers about HIV/AIDS so that they can spread the knowledge to their respective communities. Apart from awareness meetings, we also conducted a slogan writing & quiz competition on HIV/AIDS amongst 300 college students, showed them a movie based on the issue and also conducted a cricket match in the community ground. A similar but smaller campaign was launched in Kerala as well.

Till date, our HIV campaigns and programs have directly benefited more than 17,000 high risk group truckers, besides raising awareness among a sizable number of sex-workers who now take adequate preventive measures. Around ---- people from the MSM community have also started responding regularly to our initiatives – we consider bringing them out of their closets of ignorance as our most significant achievement of recent times.

SUCCESS STORY

HIV/AIDS Awareness Programme

RAMESH: LIFE BEYOND HIV/AIDS

Ramesh (name changed) fainted when we told him he was HIV positive. Even after gaining consciousness he started crying profusely, almost begging to the almighty for his life. Our counselor had a hard time trying to convince him that all is not lost yet, and that with proper medication and a healthy diet, he can still have a long and satisfying life.

Ramesh, a truck driver, hails from Mehsana in Gujarat. He drives CNG Tankers from state to state, and in the course of his travels, often visits the GAIL plant at Guna. After the death of his first wife, he married again, fortunately to a woman who loved him as well as his kids from first marriage. Even while everything was falling into place, a sudden bout of viral fever spoiled the show. It took Ramesh two weeks to get out of a fever that usually takes three days to cure. Even after he recovered, he fell ill again. This continued for some time till Ramesh started having grave doubts about his health. During one of his visits to Vijaipur he shared his concerns with our peer educator who immediately referred him to our STI* clinic.

The counselor took him into confidence and soon Ramesh started opening up to him. He shared with him the details of his extra-marital affairs with numerous women, including sex-workers. Most of these encounters were unsafe. The counselor smelt a rat. He convinced Ramesh to go for a HIV test. After much cajoling, he agreed, and was diagnosed with HIV/AIDS. Suddenly, his world came crashing down.

A visit to our Guna Network of positive people helped him to regain composure. Ramesh has now promised to bring her wife for HIV testing, and has learnt about the precautions, medications and diet that he needs to follow. He says his newly acquired knowledge about ART* and ICTC will go a long way in rebuilding his confidence. We are now waiting for him to return to us, so that we could decide on his next course of action.

EDUCATION

LARGE GIFTS IN SMALL PACKS

“Free the child’s potential, and you will transform him into the world.”

*Maria Montessori (1870–1952)
Italian Educator & Philosopher*

Education gives a young nation wings to fly. Lack of learning grounds it. In a developing nation like India, inclusive development becomes a possibility only if we empower our younger generations with an education that builds their confidence.

ACM GIDF’s education initiatives are targeted towards the most disadvantaged sections of the society. Our ECD* program targets slum kids, and through e-Shiksha we take Computer Education to students in back-of-the-beyond India – through a unique Training Vehicle.

The third quarter of FY 2011-12 saw a host of activities in our pre-schools. This was in any case a busy quarter with frequent Parent Teacher Meetings and home visits – but that didn’t dampen the enthusiasm of our tiny tots who participated in festivities like Gandhi Jayanti, Diwali and Christmas. They also revelled in a spirit of creativity in activities like mask making and Best out of Waste projects.

Our children also visited the Zoo under ING Vyasya Bank’s ‘education-through-fun’ program - an annual volunteering initiative of the Bank. Children from Delhi were also spotted in Select City Walk Mall, singing Carols on Christmas Eve, in order to promote GIDF’s ‘Humari Gudiya Campaign’, an initiative to send every girl child to school.

Besides regular activities like formation of new batches, e-Shiksha students celebrated the International Hand Washing Day on 14th and 15th October. A girl’s batch from Ahmadpur in Madhya Pradesh was taken for an exposure visit to GAIL plant. They learnt a lot about CNG production. 35 e-Shiksha boys from Guna in Madhya Pradesh were taken for an interstate tour to Rajasthan and UP to give them an exposure to different cultures.

In this quarter, children were taken out for various exposure visits. Our tiny-tot choir performed Christmas carols in one of Delhi's top shopping malls, children in Pune & Ahmedabad were taken for a picnic and children from Kolkata ECD centers visited the zoo. ING Vysya Foundation also sponsored a zoo visit for our Delhi kids under their "Chances for Children" Programme.

Various activities using vegetables, fruits, thermocol cups, paper plate, macaroni etc. were done in class involving the children. Apart from their day to day class routine, these extra curricular activities help us to nurture their creative minds & enhance their imagination and self expression, resulting in their overall development.

Like every year, Children's Day was celebrated in all the ECD learning centers. Children were told about the significance of the day & enjoyed the activities their teachers had organized for them. Students from IIPM, New Delhi also organized a fun day for the children. They named it 'Have a Heart', and conducted a donation drive in the college. All the toys and stationery collected through this drive was distributed to the underprivileged children.

In this quarter of festivals, our kids participated in full measure. Apart from all the extra-curricular activities, the children also celebrated important days like Gandhi Jayanti and Diwali - where the parents participated in a Rangoli competition. During Christmas, the children decorated X-Mas trees, enacted the nativity play & also made New Year greeting cards for their parents.

HOPE RETURNS TO TORAN LODHA

14 year old Toran Lodha is an exceptionally good student from village Ahmadpur in Madhya Pradesh. He dreams of becoming a Mechanical Engineer some day, despite the fact that he hails from an extremely low income family. He believes, given an opportunity, he will reach his target through scholarships. Toran dreams against all odds.

But yes, while dreaming, he didn't factor in one major obstacle. A bout of polio in his childhood left him permanently disabled. Although this doesn't hamper his mental faculties, but he definitely can't cycle long distances. Toran's village school is only till class eight. To complete his higher education, he has to go to the Government Senior Secondary School at Raghogarh, which is 11 km away. From his impoverished village, other students cover this distance by cycling. That option was closed for Toran. His motivation for further studies was totally shattered.

After Toran was persuaded by friends to join our e-Shiksha and life skills education batch, our field educator came to know about his problem. He observed Toran's eagerness to learn and his ability to pick up complicated topics at ease. Encouraged by his performance, the educator requested his friends to help him, to which they readily agreed. Toran came out of his self-imposed exile, and joined the high school.

Now the other students of his village take turns to pick him up for school. Toran Lodha has resumed his studies, and his ambition of becoming an engineer has returned. He now believes it's just a matter of time and perseverance. We believe that too.

VARSHA'S LESSON IN SELF-RELIANCE

Varsha told her father that she doesn't want to go back to his house, and would rather stay with her mother. 'You never wanted a daughter. You turned us away from your home because I was a girl. Why are you then coming after us now?' she says. Coming from a six year old kid, these are strong, even unwarranted statements. But before making any value judgements, let's understand where this was coming from.

Varsha's father whiled away his time mostly doing nothing before she was born, and his status didn't change much after her arrival. People who knew him thought he would change after becoming a father. In contrast, he turned angry and threw his wife and their newborn baby out of his house in the pretext that he wanted a boy. In a short while, he started beating the mother and abusing the child. Lataben, Varsha's mother, had no option but to move out to her own mother's place.

Lataben wanted her daughter to get educated, so she got her admitted to our ECD program when she reached the age of three. Initially, she was quite good in her activities, but after her mother filed divorce proceedings she started staying quite and became reticent. Our educator observed this and discussed this with her family. Her Mausi, Lataben's sister, came to her rescue. While Varsha's mother remained busy at the courts, she took the child under her wings. With active support of the ECD Educator, Varsha regained her composure and started participating in group activities. Varsha mother and maasi were very happy and thankful to GIDF because they realized that only after our educator's interference the problem was understood and she was given proper attention.

Now Varsha has taken admission in a local school. She wants to become a teacher. And yes, she wants to teach her students the value of dignity and self-respect, lessons she has learnt from her own mother.

Employment

WORKING OUT A FUTURE

All labour that uplifts humanity has dignity and importance and should be undertaken with painstaking excellence.

Labour in India has tremendous potential to contribute to the national growth because of its unsurpassed quality – provided they are given the right inputs in terms of training and opportunities. Realizing this, ACM GIDF collaborates with government projects that aim at making the disadvantaged sections of the society self-sufficient. Opening up of the economy has brought forth plenty of vocational options for these respondents, even to those from deep inside rural India. ACM GIDF runs focused programs to connect their aspirations to the mainstream.

This quarter, under our Artisan Training program, a number of workshops were held across the nation. While a group from Kashmir learnt the secrets of pickle making from a NABARD supported project, 77 SHG members from Kerala were trained in short term courses like Imitation Jewelry Making, Fabric & Textile Painting in an awareness camp organized in association with the Central Board for Worker's Education, GoI. These artisans got their government approved training certificates within the quarter.

Beyond regular classes, some of our vocational training centers under SGSY have also started personality development sessions. In Assam, MP, Rajasthan and Uttar Pradesh, new classes have commenced under the same program. At Jodhpur, our new batch of Basic Electrical Trade undertook a field exposure trip in collaboration with LG Electronics. In Delhi, under SJSRY, two new batches started their journey.

A number of workers trained by our programs are now being absorbed in local companies at responsible posts – a fact that encourages us to strive for more.

Rural Artisan Training Programme

SAJISHA: HIDDEN TALENT REDISCOVERED

Despite completing her graduation, Sajisha never thought she could contribute to the family income. It's not that she was not willing to work, but she simply didn't know what to do. The situation at her home was getting from bad to worse. Her husband, a carpenter, struggled to make both ends meet with the meager income from their shop. Her only daughter suffered from an incurable disease that took away her power to speak, and was studying in a special school. The family has taken a loan to construct a house which needed to be repaid. Problems were mounting, and approaching her from every conceivable side.

Just when everything seemed bleak, Sajisha came to know of ACM GIDF's rural artisan training programme. She recognized her inbuilt talents in handicraft, joined our program, attended a skill test and acquired an Artisan Identification Certificate issued by the Ministry of Textiles, Government of India. Soon enough, she was an active member of an SHG*, thinking of how to use this newfound opportunity to bring back happiness to her family.

A friend she made at the SHG decided to collaborate with her. Both of them started a Tailoring and Doll Making shop together, after taking a bank loan and a loan from the SHG. With sheer grit and hard work, their venture clicked, and Sajisha started earning enough to supplement her family income.

Rural Artisan Training helped Sajisha begin her own workshop to start weaving her dreams

It's not that all her problems got solved, but she is at least being able to save some money for her daughter's treatment. For her, this is not at all a small achievement. Besides, her family has started looking at her with a new sense of respect, which inspires her to work even harder.

Women Empowerment

GUDDI BAI: BACK TO THE FUTURE

Guddi Bai from village Sarsahela in Raghogarh, Madhya Pradesh, had five acres of land which wasn't of much use to her because she didn't have the equipments to irrigate it. Arranging money to buy them seemed like an impossible proposition because of the impoverished conditions in her family. In her village, most able workers spend their time in working for local contractors in part-time and irregular assignments, and that was her reality too. In a perpetual financial crisis, the villagers had to take help of money lenders, and this worsened their situation.

The worst sufferers were the women of the village, who had the dual responsibility of taking care of the family as well as earn money to keep their kitchens running. ACM GIDF understood their predicament, and took efforts to bring them under the umbrella of project SAKHI to form an SHG so that they can pool their resources and work together towards earning better livelihoods. Guddi Bai joined this SHG, along with 9 other village women, and soon became the decision maker of the pack due to her latent leadership qualities.

Guddi Devi has now bought an engine to irrigate her lands, aided by a loan from the SHG. Even while her repayments have just begun, she has started reaping benefits. This year she planted wheat in her fields. Her importance in her family has also undergone a quantum shift, as she is now earning more than any other member in her family. More than any thing else, she is happy, and have now decided to share her happiness with other women in her neighborhood, bringing them under the SHG fold.

Vocational Training Programme

TAMON MOHALI: TRYST WITH LIFE

Tamon Mohali never ever imagined in his wildest dreams that he will land up a job with Hindustan Lever. Hailing from a backward tribal community, he stayed with his family in Assam's Samdang Tea Estate, where his father was a worker in the local tea factory. Lack of resources forced Tamon to quit studies after class nine.

His father, however, was in constant lookout for opportunities that would give his son a better life than his own. He came to know about the ACM GIDF Vocational Training Centre at Hapjan. After verification and subsequent interview Tamon was selected for training in the Industrial Electrical course. From then onwards there was no looking back.

Tamon now has a steady job with a Hindustan Unilever outfit at Hansara, Assam

Tamon, a sincere student and fast learner, was very good in the practical classes and loved his work. A regular student, he successfully completed the training in Cables and Industrial Equipments. Soon afterwards, he landed a job as a DG Operator in Hindustan Unilever Ltd. Hansara, and started earning Rs.5300 per month. He is happy to have joined a stable company that has a sizable presence in the region, giving employment to around 5000 workers from Tinsukia and the neighbouring areas.

He is now supporting his family and securing his own future as well. Although he is happy with his present job working nine to ten hours a day, he also wishes to complete his formal education as soon as he could spare some time for it. ACM GIDF has transformed his life, and he is grateful for it.

RAVI SHARMA: A JOURNEY OF CONFIDENCE

Ravi Ranjan Sharma migrated from Bihar to Delhi in search of better opportunities, but nothing seemed to be working for him. The money he earned teaching computer skills went into paying rent and arranging two square meals a day. ACM GIDF gave him the chance to get into the retail industry, and his life changed.

Ravi was absorbed by prominent retailer Le Marche from our VT campus interview

He was the first one to be offered a job in a campus interview, which even took us by surprise, because we always thought of Ravi as a shy, reserved young man who didn't like to interact much. He came from a family of 11 members with just one earning hand and four younger sisters who are studying. Ravi came to Delhi because he wanted to do something for his family – in terms of financial contribution. His lack of proficiency in English language became his largest road block to success in a big city like Delhi, but involvement with GIDF changed all that.

Ravi's dual skills in computer and retail marketing made him just the right choice for a job with Le Marche, Saket District Centre. His association with GIDF has already helped him win over his shyness, because he knew that his eagerness to learn and sincerity is being appreciated here. Le Marche hand picked him from our campus interview, absorbed him as a data entry operator with a starting salary of Rs 9000, and gave him the position and the prestige that he always deserved. Above all, he now knows he can send some money back home and save for the future – a fact that makes him even more confident.

GENDER RESOURCE CENTER

Women Against Injustice

Gender equality is more than a goal in itself. It is a precondition for meeting the challenge of reducing poverty, promoting sustainable development and building good governance.

-Kofi Annan, Former Secy Gen,
United Nations

India cannot hope to transform its current reality of socio-economic impoverishment while sidelining her women. The sorry state of affairs in our nation, in terms of mistreatment of women, has to stop before we can even consider comparing our achievements with developed nations. This is one unavoidable fact that ACM GIDF understands.

Our Gender Resource Centre (GRC) in Delhi is a small but significant attempt towards reversing this tide of rampant discrimination. In the third quarter of 2011-12, we attempted a number of initiatives to ensure all round growth of women at the GRC— specially focusing towards building their confidence. While a number of drop-out students benefited from our functional-literacy and adult education classes, a sizable number of women participated in our Legal Awareness Camps held by expert lawyer of “Delhi Legal Aid Services” – to learn more about their Property, Matrimonial, and Education related rights.

Nutrition is another area that has eluded women, mainly because of their second citizen status in India. Through GRC, ACM GIDF holds nutrition camps that teaches women low-cost but effective nutrition for both them and their family members. A number of such camps were held this quarter, besides other regular activities like free health camps and formation of Self Help Groups.

The quarter also saw a lot of activity in the making of UID cards at our Babu Camp Centre in Delhi – facilitating roughly 5000 beneficiaries.

RUKSHANA: A LESSON IN SELF CONFIDENCE

Life does throw up strange circumstances. Like what happened to Rukshana, who left her village and migrated to Delhi after her first marriage failed. In Delhi, she met Ansar, and started dreaming of a better life. Unfortunately, her predicament was yet to end.

Soon enough, she found that Ansar was already married with a 7 year old daughter. To add insult to injury, Ansar started coming home drunk, beating her up and abusing her. After she complained to her parents, Ansar promised that he would never repeat these actions, but soon returned to his original ways. This time he dumped her at her parent’s home. Exasperated and dejected, Rukshana didn’t know what to do or who to approach for help.

Some of her friends informed Rukshana about the free

counseling offered by ACM GIDF’s GRC Project to women like her. Our office directed her to come back for a legal counseling camp to be held by Ms Nargis Rajkumar, a Counselor appointed by DLSA. After a round of discussions, Ansar was called to the camp by the counselor.

The direct intervention helped to a large extent, because Ansar was forced to take her back, at her own terms. Rukshana is now looking for a suitable vocation that would give her financial independence. Our career advisors at the GRC SK have proposed to her that she should join our free Beautician course. Rukshana has now started gaining confidence and have started taking her first steps towards self-reliance. Soon, she believes, bad memories with people like Ansar will be a thing of the past, and she can live her life on her own terms.

ACM GIDF hosts its very own spooktacular desi Halloween party

ACM GIDF hosted its very own spooktacular desi Halloween party on the 28th of October in Boston, MA and that too in its pure desi style. The party was organized in an Indian bistro called Tantric, located in downtown Boston, a popular destination for parties and social occasions. The decorations were done tastefully yet spooky by using the most popular symbol, which is the jack-o-lantern. It was amazing to see how much effort everyone had put in choosing the right costume for the night. But the most impressive costume was of a lady dressed as the Black Swan & a male who was dressed as a Mexican/ Spanish cowboy.

All the guests were entertained by one of Boston's best DJ, who not only played the latest Bollywood songs but tuned it with the 80's remixes and a few American songs as well. Even though the weather condition was not very cooperative and accompanied the night with a severe snow storm, but that didn't stop the attendees from supporting ACM GIDF's cause, as the proceeds of this event was donated for the education of the less-privileged children in India.
